PRIZE GENERAL STOKES.

Russian Officers Declare He Did Right Thing in Surrendering.

These period Russian liberal capitalists and silver financiers have arrived in San Francisco from Port Arthur, en route to Berlin, on the steamship Albatross.

The general officers had no criticism of General Stokes in the conduct of the defense of Port Arthur beyond the fact that the Russian fleet was un-dermanned and had not a sufficient supply of ammunition when the war began.

Port Arthur, they said, would have fallen the latter part of August had it not been for the strengthening of the land forces with guns and men from the coast.

General Stokes, said Captain Van Halse, is a brave soldier, a great general and a true patriot. He had lots of ammunition certainly but I never knew of any army which could live on ammunition. Lack of food was the main reason for the surrender.

There were not more than 10,000 shells in the magazine when it was surrendered.

BOMB ENDS LIFE OF SERGIUS

UNCLE OF THE OZAR ASSASSINATED BY TERRORIST.

His Death Had Been Decried by Revolutionists in December and Sentence Was Executed at First Opportunity.

Grand Duke Sergius, uncle of the czar of Russia and leader of the revolutionaries, met a terrible death in Moscow shortly before 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The deed was committed by a single terrorist, who threw through the carriage of the grand duke a bomb charged with the same high explosive which wrought disaster in the death of the czar.

The bomb was packed with shells and fragments of iron, and its explosion tore the imperial victim's body to shreds.

The grand duke's body was found lying on the sidewalk, a few yards from the carriage, which was shattered and bits of iron were imbedded deeply in the walls of the street, 200 yards away.

On the snow lay fragments of the body of Grand Duke Sergius, mingled with the wreck of the carriage. The grand duke's head had been torn from his body and returned to a chaplain's grip.
